

We aren't safe if we aren't free.

The ACLU wants us all to be safe from terrorism and other forms of criminal activity. We fully support investigations that are in accordance with the Constitution and Bill of Rights.

We realize however that the FBI and other law enforcement agencies need to have checks and balances in order to prevent abuse and corruption. The USA PATRIOT Act and actions by the Bush Administration have removed many of the safeguards that protect us from abuse and that preserve our Constitutional rights.

By removing these safeguards, the government has only made us less free, not safe.

We need to be safe from terrorism, but we also need to guard against abuse of power.
