

FLORIDA'S ABORTION BAN

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW & FAQ

Current status:

On May 1, 2024, Florida's abortion ban went into effect.

Who does the abortion ban affect?

This abortion ban will apply to anyone who is pregnant in Florida.

I've heard it called a "6-week abortion ban," does that mean that I can access an abortion up to six weeks after learning I'm pregnant?

No. This ban outlaws abortion before many people even realize they are pregnant, and often before a pregnancy can be detected on an ultrasound.

Can I access an abortion up to six weeks after I was impregnated (conception)?

No. This ban starts the clock on the first day of your last menstrual period, not from conception. Under Florida law, you are considered "6 weeks pregnant" about two weeks after you have missed your period if your periods are regular. Since a limited number of doctors will provide abortions in Florida, it may be difficult for most people to obtain the two state-mandated in-person doctor appointments, which must be at least 24 hours apart, in order to have an abortion.

What if I don't know I'm pregnant within that time frame?

It will be illegal for most people to access an abortion in Florida if they don't know they are pregnant within this time frame. The vast majority of people will be required to carry pregnancies to term or to travel out of state to obtain an abortion. Does Florida's abortion ban apply to medication abortions (the abortion pill) as well as the abortion procedure?

Yes.

Under Florida's abortion ban, is it a crime for abortion medication pills to be sent through the mail?

Yes. Florida's abortion ban requires that abortion medication be dispensed in person by a physician and not through the mail.

Does Florida’s abortion ban have exceptions for victims of rape, incest, and human trafficking to get an abortion?

Florida’s abortion ban makes it difficult for survivors of rape, incest and human trafficking to access an abortion in Florida. Under the ban, survivors of rape, incest, and human trafficking are required to provide documentation of their assault, and if they don’t, they will be required to carry and give birth. There are no exceptions for rape, incest or human trafficking after the fifteenth week of pregnancy.

Are there exceptions in the law to protect the health of a pregnant patient?

According to medical professionals, these inaccessible exceptions endanger patients' health, safety, and future fertility. Already, there have been several instances of pregnant women in emergency situations being required to wait for medical care or to carry nonviable pregnancies to term.

Does Florida law criminalize abortion or just prohibit it?

Florida’s ban makes it a felony crime for doctors to perform an abortion, with criminal penalties of up to five years in prison and fines of up to $5,000 for violating this ban.
